Reviewer's Comment for Publication.

The manuscript addresses an important and relevant topic by examining the relationship between environmental awareness, community participation, and sustainable living. It is logically organized, presents clear objectives and research questions, and draws on relevant literature concerning environmental education, participatory governance, social responsibility, and sustainable development. The discussion effectively highlights the importance of local knowledge, inclusive decision-making, public infrastructure, and collective action in environmental protection. The recommendations are practical and socially significant. However, the methodology requires more detail regarding the process of literature selection and analysis, and the theoretical framework could be integrated more explicitly into the discussion. The manuscript would also benefit from deeper critical comparison of the cited studies, clarification of its original contribution, and careful checking of reference accuracy and consistency. Minor language and formatting improvements are recommended. Overall, the paper has academic and practical value and may be considered for publication after minor revision.
